SIGNS OF A BRILLIANT CLUB SEASON.

Combination for a Club-House Dance. Toilets for Country Fetes—Brides and Their Veils.

(Copyright 1891.)

New York, Oct. 11. LL signs point to an extremely brilliant season at Lenox and Tuxedo and at the leading country clubs in the vicinity of the metropolis. There is something particularly favorable in the clear, crisp atmosphere of October to bring out the full beauty of autumnal tints, whether in the garbs of the forest or in the costumes of a fashionable woman. While wraps may be necessary for riding to and from the club-house, yet the moment you reach the glass-enclosed verandas and tennis courts you find the air oppressive if you are clad in anything approaching a genuine fall costume. Many of the non-dancing ladies drive to the club-house and go from their carriages directly to the ball-room.

In my initial illustration I set before you a very effective combination toilet for a club-house dance. It consists of overskirt and bodice in gray pea de soie and skirt of striped faille in pale yellow, gray and black. The hat is of steel gray silk with black feathers, while the gloves are of pale champagne and the fan of steel gray. Dresses are to be slightly draped or the back breadth to be made with a broad hem, a hand wide at the bottom and diminishing to two fingers. And I note, too, that there is a promise of a new garniture for skirts in the shape of silk or pearled fringe, such as used to be worn in the olden time, and the undulations of which our grandmas pretended increased the grace of the lower folds of the skirt and accentuated the beauty of the feet. Velvet will be much used as trimming for silk gowns this winter, and I am glad to hear it, for the combination, when artistically effected, is always very pleasing. Sometimes the velvet is applied in broad bands at the bottom of the skirt, at others it is ranged in the guise of braces, which disappear under the draped centre, and then reappear and continue to the bottom of the skirt, there being bows on the shoulders half way down the skirt and quite at the bottom. Another extremely dashing and effective costume with velvet trimming was designed for a trunette and consisted of crimson cloth edged all around with a bias of dark brown velvet lightly headed by a luminous

FOR SUPPLEMENTAL REASON. streak of gold braid. This trimming also formed high collar and cuffs, while the full part of the sleeves was of crimson and gold brocade.

In my second illustration you will find pictured two very stylish costumes for an afternoon entertainment at a country club-house or at some hotel in a fashionable October resort like Lenox or Tuxedo. The lady on the right wears a mustard yellow mervellous elaborately trimmed with ivory lace, while the one on the left is clad in an eccentric combination of old blue cloth, having a snowy effect, and white cloth or fine white flannel.

One cannot help noticing the striking and original uses to which the great designers of feminine costumes put galloon and passementerie. One of the most graceful of such garnitures which I have noted consists of a baldric or shoulder belt in gold and green passementerie, which, after encircling the arm, meets in a point at the waist, whence it falls to the hem of the basque. In my third illustration are pictured two more charming outdoor toilets for the supplemental season, the one on the right being a combination costume of plain and figured pompadour foulard with a crepe de chine ruffle at the neck in the same tone as the gown. The TOILETS AT COUNTRY CLUB FETE. sleeves and corsage are set off with velvet ribbon. The costume on the left is made up in a light gray blue cloth with a long coat-shaped jacket over a Directors waistcoat of very rich pearl-colored satin beautifully figured in cream, yellow and chartreuse green tints; centre of gold cord.

If all mankind loves a lover, all womankind love a wedding. No matter whether a woman ever expects to be married or not, she is always interested in the subject, and it is the most common sight in the world to see a dignified miss of thirty summers clamber upon the back of a church pew to get a glimpse at the orange flowers, white satin and real lace which she has seen as many times as she has birthdays. Perhaps a few women may attend weddings to scoff and sneer, but not so the vast majority. They go to admire, see how the fair maid meets her fate at the altar, and how she looks when she comes down the aisle and leaves the church on the arm of her newly-acquired husband. No matter how you may strive to make one wedding differ from another, it's always the same thing, for the reason that there is only one thing to be pleased or make believe that you are pleased; but there is a rumor that we are about to adopt the custom of printing the portrait of the bride, not only in her wedding dress and traveling costume, but in her everyday dress, and the public may see exactly what sort of a girl she is and pity or envy the groom, as the case may be. But I doubt that these pictures will prove satisfactory to friends—that is, if they are taken just previous to the event, for there will be a studious attempt to bring out the "engaged look," and that will spoil the characteristic charm of the face.

I give the counterpart presentation of one of these young ladies in my fourth illustration. It will be noted how strong the "eng-

THE ENGAGED LOOK. "engaged look" is in this photograph; so strong, in fact, as to destroy all the natural piquancy of the face. When the post-and-post know very little about dress—averred that beauty unadorned is adorned the most, he didn't mean to assert that the face must be divested of its peculiar charm, that expression must be suppressed, manner annihilated and all piquancy smoothed out of the countenance.

My last illustration represents the bride in her wedding uniform—an ivory white duchesse satin of rich quality and beautiful shade, with deep fashion bouffes of chiffon, trimmed top and hem with exquisite riddle point d'Alencon. This beautiful lace really merited the epithet old, for it had already the wedding dress of the bride's mother. A full, soft puffing of chiffon was carried around the edge of the skirt, the flounce falling gracefully over it. The lengthy square-cut train was entirely unadorned, the front of the bodice was crossed from right to left by a bias fold of satin trimmed with the same rare lace. The high standing collar was shirred and smoothed on the inner side, a jabot of chiffon filled up the space at the neck, and the very long tulle veil was hemmed with floss silk and fastened to the orange blossom wreath with a diamond and sapphire crescent. The bouquet was made of rare white exotics. The brisepans were cream-cream bonneted around the front of the skirt with sky blue velvet, the jacket pockets, cuffs and collars being of the same pretty material.

Colored underwear continues to be very much in vogue, it, too, being extremely delicate, such as pink, ool blue, canary yellow, etc. Sometimes there are broad collarettes of valenciennes with a flounce of surah trimmed with lace at the bottom, and a wide band continued all the way down to the flounce. A beautiful underskirt in canary yellow ponce had black figures, and there were three little tuks above the flounce of black guipure. The combination of yellow and black was very artistic.

With the tailor-made costumes, daintily thrust into the corsage, there must always be a handsome little handkerchief of batiste or of pink or yellow silk, embroidered with butterflies, bees or flowers, or trimmed with Valenciennes lace. The most modern veil is plain in front of the face, but embroidered with small stars at the bottom. These veils reach quite to the corsage and are longer than they are broad, and the ends meet at the back. As yet winter fashions are rather dimly outlined, or to speak after the manner of the sporting man, there are many entries, but it will be some time before the favorites become known.

"Have seen an American actress during my present visit to this country that for whom I predict the brightest future—I mean Julia Marlowe. She is a marvelous and interesting artist, refined, subtle and sympathetic; expressive and, possibly, not overstrong. But give her time. In five years hence she ought to be not only a fine actress, but one of the few nobly grand dramatic artists of the stage. She is particularly free from the great faults of most American actors. Miss Marlowe never exaggerates her tone or gesture. All that she does is dainty and delicate."

Oh, What a Cough. Will you heed the warning—the signal, perhaps, of the sure approach of that more dreaded disease, Consumption? Ask yourselves if you can afford for the sake of saving 10 cents, to turn the risk and do nothing for it? You know from experience that Shiloh's Cure will cure your cough. It never fails. This explains why more than a million of bottles were sold the last year. It relieves Croup and Whooping Cough at once. Mothers, do not be without it. Sample bottles free. Sold by Bodeker Brothers and H. M. Shields & Co., corner of Fifth and Marshall streets.

It takes something else besides good scenery to please the intelligent public nowadays, and "The Vendetta" has a strong company of good actors in addition to the best of scenic effects.

GREAT DOINGS THIS WEEK

IN OUR Cloak, Wrap and Suit Department

At one bound we have gained the leadership in Cloaks, Wraps and Suits. We show more styles and better styles at lower prices than you have ever known. A study of the following items will repay you.

LADIES' MILITARY CAPES. Made from the finest imported goods—beautifully embroidered and trimmed with jet and steel and black and ostrich feathers. All have high Medici collars—some lined throughout with silk, and others with finished seams—the most elegant goods ever brought to this city at $40, $50, $60, $65, and $75 each.

Fine Imported Fur-Backed Cloth Reefers, extra-full collar and facing of finest fur Astrachan, only $25 each.

Exclusive London Dye and Electric Finished Seal Plush Jackets, full storm-collars and facing of genuine mink, only $40 each.

Blazers, for early fall, in black, blue and tan, at $2.48, $2.75, $2.98 and $3.98.

There is a scarcity of high novelties in All-Wool Dress Materials in this country. The over-stock of last spring resulted in a serious loss to many importers. It was a costly experience, and dreading a repetition of it they touched fall novelties very lightly. The result is a demand largely exceeding the supply. Quantities never phase us. Our outlet is almost unlimited. High Novelties in choicest exclusive designs are shown here as usual in an assortment probably as large as the combined stocks of the city—all are not expensive. Some as low as $4.95 for a full dress pattern. From that up, with easy rises, to $55.

Scotch Tweeds and Cheviots imported by us in upwards of 100 styles and patterns, handsome goods and great for wear, from 50c. to $2.50 a yard.

Bedford Cord are also said to be scarce. They may be in some stores, but they are plentiful here. Three more lines have been added during the past week, and the assortment now consists of six qualities, 85c., 95c., $1, $1.25, $1.50 and $3 a yard. Colors are black, navy-blue, green, brown, tan, gray and other leading shades. Where will you find a like assortment? Certainly not in Richmond.

BLACK DRESS GOODS. We have said but little this season about Black Goods. We have always carried the best stock in the city, but this season we have done better. We have now a better stock than even WE ever carried before. Special attention is called to our line of Priestley's Silk-Warp Henriettes. They are the best wearing goods made. We've sold them for over ten years and we never heard a complaint. It's worth remembering when you are about to purchase a dress—a dozen qualities, $1 to $3.

DRESS TRIMMINGS. We have, beyond a doubt, the handsomest line of Dress Trimmings ever shown in the South. The exclusive trade will find here extreme novelties not to be seen elsewhere.

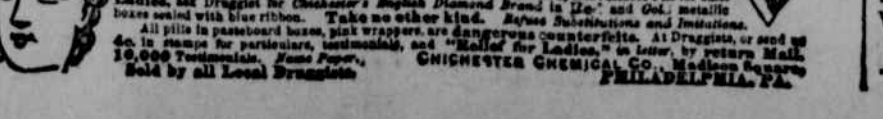

Jet Trimmings for which there is now such a demand we have an elegant assortment from 1/2 inch up to 4 inches wide, in nail-head and other designs.

Plain Silk and Crocheted Gimps in great variety. Colored Passementeries to match all the new shades in Dress Goods.

Fancy Trimmings for evening receptions and dinner dresses. Feather Trimmings and Edgings. Feather Collars, Ruchings and Boas. A magnificent assortment and all at our usual low prices.
